They swear now that it wasn't fusion in Maine—it was confusion.

The Democrats are now satisfied that it makes no difference how Maine goes.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, of New York will speak at Springfield on Saturday, Oct. 2nd.

James R. Scott has not yet announced whether his preferences are for Hancock for president, or whether for Weaver. He is still plowing with the Greenback leaflet and the Democratic ox, and a nice mess he will make of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Hancock, too, rejoice over the Democratic victory in Maine—a victory in which not a Democratic vote was polled. The autocrat of Governor's office is to be afflicted with the loss of his brains from which the end of his party is suffering.

Mr. HUNDLEY, the Democratic candidate for State's Attorney, spoke at Harrison last night. A very intelligent gentleman who happened to be present—a stranger in the neighborhood—gave us his estimate of the speech in these words: "That young man must be very ignorant, or he must have thought that he had a very ignorant audience."

The old-squar organ of the putrid reminiscence speaks of the "glorious result" in Maine. There's nothing like being satisfied with a little. A fellow who had been a week would enjoy even a photograph of a beef-steak.

Even from the depths of the Atlantic ocean comes a protest against De-... Just before he sailed on that fatal voyage in the City of Vera Cruz, the gallant Gen. Torbert wrote to an old companion in arms:

"I have known Gen. Hancock for 25 years, and like him, but I can't stand the company, politically, that he is with. I hope no Republican of the old brigade will desert Garfield, for this fight is about as important as any we had between 1860 and 1865."

The Decatur Review has found out that in favor of James R. Scott for congress, and it devotes some space to telling what Mr. Scott is and what he is not. The editor, however, omits all reference to Mr. Scott's politics—fails to say whether he is for Hancock or for Weaver. All that this high-spirited editor cares to know about Mr. Scott is that he is "running agin Joe Cannon." More than that is not necessary to secure the support of the Review, but, fortunately, the Democratic party in this district is better than its organs; it wants its candidates to represent its principles, and is not content with such as are unwilling to avow their sentiments. All that the Review can do still not be enough to bring the Democracy of this county to the support of Scott—as a body. The election returns will show that we are right in this belief. There are Democrats in this county who despise a coward and a traitor, and they will certify to the intensity of their disgust with one man on that subject by voting against him in November.

When the editor of the Hampton organ in Decatur thought Maine had gone Democratic, he took a rooster out of the advertisement of a patron, in order to fill up his "picture-paper," filling up the space in the advertisement with these words: "Our rooster flew over the fence to-day. He is crowing for the glorious old Pine Tree State, cock-a-doodle-do!" It is interesting to know that the rooster has got through "crowing for Maine," and although his picture (as he used to look) again ornaments that patron's advertisement, his most intimate friends would never recognize him in his present emaciated condition. Our special artist, after much labor, has succeeded in making a good sketch of him as he now looks, and here it is:

ABOUT the cheekiest thing on record is General Hancock's dispatch to Mr. Plaisied, congratulating him on the glorious result in Maine. Inasmuch as Plaisied is a Greenbacker, and never was a Democrat, it will now be in order for Hancock to send Gov. Davis a congratulatory dispatch. Perhaps it will inspire the General's "friends with confidence."

THERE are two arguments fatal to Democracy, says the Albany (N. Y.) Evening Journal.

"1. A Democratic restoration can only be accomplished by doing violence to the dictates of patriotism. The party which now clamors for the return of power, which demands that the government of this country be placed in its hands, is the party which not so very long ago furnished all the men that took up arms with the determination of destroying the Union.

"2. A Democratic restoration can only be accomplished by endangering the prosperity of the country. All branches of trade and industry are doing well. The merchant and manufacturer are prospering. There is work and good wages for all who apply. No man who is not lazy or incompetent need be idle a day."

EVEN in Indiana the average Democrat has not learned the value of reticence. The Indianapolis Journal says:

The best Democratic speech of the campaign was made recently at Martinsville by Hon. Sol Claypool, of this city. He advocated the absolute independence of the states, even going so far as to justify the principle of secession. He declared that the war on the part of the government was a crime, and that the Southern people were victims. This, he argued, entitled them to remuneration for their losses, and their soldiers to equal rights with our own, which he predicted would be secured to them by Hancock's election."

THE Leadville (Col.) Herald discusses what has been settled by the war, and arguing from undisputed facts, concludes:

"Settled! There is nothing settled. It takes two parties to make a settlement. The Republicans and Union men thought everything was settled, and so it was, so far as they were concerned, but the other side have never said or thought so, and now that they are encouraged by the possibility of success, they are beginning to reveal their sentiments."

HARDLY had he returned to Galena, when Gen. Grant wrote:

"The Republicans seem to feel great confidence in carrying New York and Indiana. If they do, we are safe, and another four years will probably see the breaking up of the Democratic party and the organization of two national parties exercising the franchise freely, without fear, in all sections alike."

THE Cincinnati Commercial brings to the public notice the cloud of danger now hardly so large as a man's hand:

When there is not a member of the democratic party able to read, write and cipher, who doesn't know that the whole pretense that Tilden was elected president grows out of the political influence of bloody murder, nullifying the constitution of the United States, the true character of the prolonged howl about the fraud of 1876 becomes apparent. It is an articulate assertion of the determination of the Democratic party to rule irrespective of the rights of electors or the forms of law, and that amounts to a threat of civil war.

FRED DOUGLASS AND THE SITUATION.

The famous colored orator delivered a somewhat remarkable address at Muncie, Ind., last week, from the telegraphic report of which we make the following extracts, and commend them to our readers:

MR. PRESIDENT: I have been a man of considerable abuse; I have also received extravagant praises. I have suffered about as much from one as the other. The latter have created expectations in the people whom I have been called upon to address to such an extent that I am not able to gratify them. Sometimes I may speak with considerable eloquence, but my hearers, I fear, always

EXPECT TOO MUCH of me; and to-day I find my throat ragged; I am sore tired and can not do justice to the cause. But I feel that I shall be able to make myself heard by such an orderly audience as Indiana affords me. I understand that I am in what was once a part of the district which my friend, Geo. W. Julian, represented in Congress. I call him my friend because we both worked to accomplish the same result. I have met him at abolition meetings. I assisted him in securing the nomination of Vice President upon the abolition ticket. The ticket was then Hale and Julian. Democrats dubbed him Julia Anna. [Laughter.] I have gone straight forward, have stood firm against slavery and rebellion, against whipping posts and auction blocks. He has espoused another cause. We have separated. He has gone one way. I have continued in the old path. If he is right then I am wrong. We cannot both be right. He now opposes the cause which once he favored. An apostate becomes one of the worst villains of the cause he deserts. At Indianapolis not long ago this

APOSTATE AND TRAITOR stated that it would not do to go back on the record of the Republican party; that this party recognized slavery as constitutional, and was willing to return slaves to their masters. There was this much truth in his statement: When Lincoln was elected and inaugurated, Southern Democrats attempted to secede and break up the Union. A committee was appointed from the Republican ranks of the north to meet with gentlemen of the south to hear their grievances. As they met them then so we meet this to-day. We ask them their griefs in a spirit of conciliation. They said to the Republicans: "Our griefs are these: You of the North are becoming stronger. Foreigners are coming to your shores. You are increasing in wealth and Congressional representatives. Eventually you will exert your power for the destruction of slavery, to prohibit its extension in the States and prohibit it in the Territories. Next, you won't fill your constitutional obligations. You won't capture and send back to us our fugitive slaves." These were the griefs of the South. Like George W. Julian, Francis Adams proved a traitor to Republican principles and said: "We of the North would favor a constitutional amendment providing for the restitution of slavery." This is the base of Julian's claim. The Republican party declared that whenever it was clearly proven that a negro passing through any of the free States was an escaping fugitive slave, the owner should be paid the full value of the slave. Does that justify George W. Julian? Does that prove that the Republican party favored the capture and return of fugitives to their masters? I fear

GEORGE HAS BEEN TEMPTED TO LIE. The temptation to lie is strong when a man has deserted a good cause and espoused a bad one. The Democratic party, the principal part of which is in the South, was in favor of the fugitive slave law. I wear on my back to-day marks received from the lash of the task-master. I was a fugitive, escaping from slavery to freedom. There was no place in all this broad land where I could lie down and feel myself free. Neither on the high mountain or in the low valley could I claim my freedom. I had no place wherever to lay my head. But to-day this land knows no such bondage. No slave clanks his fetters or rattles his chains. That these fetters have been broken and chains cast off is

DUE TO THE REPUBLICAN PARTY. [Applause.] I came from a very low condition—the lowest, perhaps, to which humanity can be subject. Oh, it is terrible. When I look upon that condition I am made to exclaim: "Oh the depth, the depth, the depth from which I came!" But, thanks to God, thanks to the logic of events, thanks to the boys in blue, and thanks to the Republican party, I stand before you as a man, a citizen of a country whose future is brighter than that of any other on the globe. [Applause.] I am no longer Fred Douglass, a slave, a fugitive in search of freedom, but Fred Douglass, United States Marshal of the District of Columbia. But I came not here to talk of myself, but the issues which divide the parties. What is the fundamental

THE ALL IMPORTANT ISSUE in this campaign? It is whether this government shall be put in the hands of those who tried to destroy it, or in the hands of those who tried gallantly to defend it. Is government safer in the hands of its friends or its foes? Parties are more than men. They are not created by individual men. Parties grow out of principles; they are the products of sentiments, issues, and events. We had two great generators of parties in the early settlement of this country, and from the northern settlement in Massachusetts has sprung the underlying principles of the republican partly from the Jamestown or Virginia type of civilization the democratic party has had its origin and growth. The hope of the democratic party lies in the 133 electoral votes constituting the solid South. What interest apart from the solid South? It has been done by the same spirit that broke up the union by fraud and crime—crime so great that we can scarcely believe the stories told of the wrongs that have been perpetrated in this section. They have stricken down every right of white as well as black republicans. Democrats tell us these charges are not true; but in slave days they sold men to build churches, women to support missionaries, babes to purchase bibles, and then hid the wrong under the garb of Christianity. I have seen them take a woman, strip her to the waist and tie her two hands to a rack above, and whip her with a slave lash until the warm blood trickled down her trembling form. Like cattle I have seen them branded with hot irons, that they might be identified if trying to escape. Men with such feelings are fit to commit all the crimes we charge against them. They don't believe in work. They sit at cross-roads' corners and whistle sticks.

THE NEGRO has no rights which they are bound to respect. The white man who dares to defend the negro is considered no better than they, and is equally subject to their criminal practice. Will you let Indiana assist the south in securing control of our government again? [Cries of "No, never."] The South is already solid. They don't need to send speakers to that section. They don't even need to vote. The count has already been made and returned by Wade Hampton at the Cincinnati convention, when he declared 138 votes for the nominee of that convention. Free speech don't exist in that section. They can come here, parade our streets, and speak freely on the political issues, but we dare not go there. Should you do so they will put a piece of cold lead into you. They will accidentally do this, of course [laughter]—but the stray bullet is just as effective as the one deliberately and well aimed. These parties have grown out of elements that are irreconcilable. Some of our friends have said, "Let bygones be bygones; let us forget the past." Man looks both before and behind. Everything in creation may be the source of some knowledge. We learn by past experiences; and we are more likely to FORGET TOO SOON than to remember too long. Shall we forget that the solid south has broken up the Union? Shall we forget the many brave boys that have died on the field of battle? Shall we forget the half million widows and orphans now pensioners as the result of the rebellion? Can we forget the corpse of brother, husband, or father, that landed, mangled, from the battle-field? Can we forget that this party caused our banner to trail in the dust, besmeared with the blood of brave men? That it shot up thousands of our brothers and sons to die of starvation? Forget these things? Never! Never! May my right hand be paralyzed and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, yet I will not, cannot forget the past. [Applause.] The republican party embodies the principles of civilization, the principles that exalt a nation. This party is led by James A. Garfield. [Applause.] I give Hancock credit for the good he has done. He may be a humane man, but I can not vote for him because I do not like his crowd. [Laughter and applause.] James A. Garfield was brave, honest, a man of education. Hancock's ambition was in the direction of war. Arms, arms, arms, was all his thoughts. War, war, war, was all his business. James A. Garfield loved peace, was once the subject of the Prince of Peace. At the tap of the drum he stepped to the front and into the ranks of battle, where he did his duty like a man. He is a self-made man. If he has climbed high, he has made the ladder upon which he climbed. If he has traveled far he has made the road over which he walked. From the janitor of a college he rose to his presidency. He has ever been a man of incessant labor. He works and is the friend of labor. Let the votes of Indiana be cast for the republican ticket, and New York will follow, and thus will the solid south be broken up and the American union perpetuated. [Tremendous applause.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16.—Gen. Raum arrived here to-day after his campaigning in Maine. He says his somewhat extravagant expectations of the election in that state were based on the situation in the counties which he visited, and which he finds are giving Republican gains, and in his opinion will save the election of Davis. He does not see any grounds for enthusiasm for the Democrats or despondency on the part of the Republicans. He says there were bitter personal antagonisms in the state which seemed to culminate during the last days of the campaign, but which he does not think will affect the electoral vote. It also seems that Boutelle, an editor, and one of the candidates waged a special war on the temperance element and drove them into the adversaries' camp. Gen. Raum going into details, said that in the late election, in the cases of Lindsey, Frye and Reed, they were returned over the combined vote of the Greenbackers and Democrats, who were united, whereas, as at the previous election, when these parties had their own candidates, they fell behind the combined vote from 900 to 1,000, therefore had the same combination existed then these gentlemen would have been defeated.

FREDONIA, Kan., September 16.—The result of the Maine election here, as it appears to a stranger, is a disgraceful fusion. Last night many of our citizens retired listening to the deafening noise of an anvil in the hands of the Democrats, only to awake and find themselves apparently out of the Union. The Greenbackers had left the American flag flying from the top of their Weaver and Chambers pole, which was found in the morning supplanted by a nice genuine rebel flag. From the first sight there was a great deal of indignation manifested by nearly all parties, hard names called, rewards offered for the offending parties, "hurrahs" for

THE LAUGH

Of the Bourbons is not so loud as it was,

For the Pine Tree State is Not Theirs.

AND DAVIS IS DOUBTLESS ELECTED.

Which is why the Cops are Unhappy.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 16.—Returns received from 519 towns, a considerable part official, gave the following vote: Davis 70,965, Plaisied 69,057, Nye 174, scattering 255, Davis ahead 1,479.

There are yet eighty-one towns and plantations to hear from, which voted last year as follows: Davis 2,427, Smith 1,758, Garcelon 1,982, Fusionists more than Davis, 1,313.

If these eighty-one towns and plantations have voted the same as last year, Davis is elected by a majority of 165.

The constitutional amendments are doubtless both adopted.

PORTLAND, Sept. 16.—Returns from five plantations and the small town of Somerset, on the remotest upper waters of the Kennebec, were received additional this morning. They give Davis 193 and Plaisied 191. Last year Davis had 136, Smith 152 and Garcelon 52. This is a republican majority of 2 this year against a Fusion majority of 67 last year.

New York, Sept. 16.—A special to the World from Bangor says: "Among the dispatches received by Mr. Plaisied to-day was the following:

New York, September 16, 1880.—Accept my congratulations on the glorious result of your campaign. It will inspire our friends with confidence and strengthen them in the preliminary battles which remain to be fought elsewhere, and which need all of our forces. (Signed) W. S. HANCOCK.

New York, September 16.—At the National Republican Committee headquarters in this city, the election of Davis over Plaisied is claimed upon the basis of a dispatch from Maine, which states that Davis' majority will reach 1,450.

PORTLAND, ME., September 17, 1 a.m.—Four hundred and seventy-two towns give Davis, 72,661; Plaisied, 71,783, scattering, 336. The same towns last year gave Davis, 64,478, Smith, 47,567; Garcelon, 21,040, scattering, 263; Davis' plurality, 878, against Fusion plurality last year of 123. Thirty-four towns not received gave last year: Davis, 635; Fusionists, 1,207; scattering, 50; a Fusion majority of 572. If they come in the same as last year, Davis will have left 303 plurality. Adding scattering to that received, we have 416, so that Davis will not get a majority without further gain of 114. The total vote to hear from is 1,922, which, increased 5 per cent like the rest, will bring the aggregate up to 146,800, so per Tuesday night's estimate, and 300 more than predicted Monday night. It will, however, be divided the other way, namely Davis, 73,330; Plaisied, 73,050; scattering, 420; subject of course, to further gain or losses on either side. The twelve Aroostook towns to come part of them gave last year Davis, 157, Smith, 70, Garcelon, 431, total of only 703, so that the changes cannot very well vary in the result.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16.—Gen. Raum arrived here to-day after his campaigning in Maine. A CARD.

I have moved my office and place of business to two blocks north of Post-Office.

Just a few feet East of the Christian Church. My new building is on the street corner line, and is of easy approach from all parts of the city. It is in a fine public place, and is better arranged for privacy. I have more room and more conveniences. I am furnished with no. 6 and better means for ascertaining "what is the matter" with my patients, and in every way better prepared to treat and cure all those diseases belonging to my business—Chronic Diseases, Surgery and Deformities.

I must beg leave to say that in Chronic Diseases—especially those of women—my experience is unlimited; that I have done every conceivable kind of surgical operation in this city and county, without the loss of a patient, and that I have done thirty-year operations on the bladder for catarrh, and have sent them all away seeing but one. I have treated all species of deformity, from crooked backs to cross of deformity, with perfect satisfaction. The only apology I have to offer for such talk as this is that it is the Truth.

If you are suffering in body or mind, come here and see me.

Soon after 11 o'clock this forenoon the following telegram was received by the physician named:

MINONK, Ill., Sept. 17, 1880.

Dr. W. J. CHERRYBURN, Decatur, Ill.: Inform Mrs. H. M. Whitmer that her husband had his leg broken in a railroad collision this morning. An effort will be made to have him brought home to-day on the Illinois Central.

W. L. SMITH.

Minonk is a station on the main line of the Illinois Central railroad, in Woodford county, about 80 miles north of Decatur. Mr. Whitmer, who is the well-known tile manufacturer, is one of our most respected and energetic citizens, and all who know him will regret exceedingly to learn of his sudden misfortune. He has been absent from the city for a number of days on business in the vicinity of Minonk, and doubtless was on his way home when the unfortunate collision occurred. Mrs. Whitmer has been notified of her husband's condition, and will be at the depot this evening to receive him on his return home, should he arrive.

A Three Act Comedy.

On Monday evening next, at the opera house, the opening of the amusement season in Decatur this fall will be inaugurated by the appearance of the Mackay-Sylvester dramatic company in their three act original comedy entitled, "Our Flirtations." This comedy abounds in melody and amusing situations. The play is divided up as follows: Act I. "Infatuation—Morning." Act II. "Adoration—Afternoon." Act III. "Consummation—Evening." Miss Louise Sylvester is the bright particular star of this constellation of artists, and is receiving very flattering notices in the newspapers of St. Louis, where "Our Flirtations" is being played at the Olympic this week. There should be a large crowd of play-goers at the opera house Monday night, and those wishing reserved seats, should engage them at once at Curtis & Co.'s jewelry store. Popular prices.

A Novel Office.

Dr. R. L. Walston, the well-known physician and surgeon, has taken possession of his new and elegantly appointed office, on East North street, within less than half a block east of the street car line, and at the same time convenient to the business centre of the city. The general arrangement of the office, outside and inside, is a perfect model of convenience, and is strictly private. The Doctor—as he says in his card, which appears in another column of this issue—is now furnished with more and better means for ascertaining "what is the matter with his patients," and is therefore enabled to treat and cure more successfully chronic diseases, surgery and deformities of every description. Dr. Walston may well be proud of his new location. It is a change that his numerous patrons will duly appreciate.

Mrs. Enos M. Henkle, of Springfield, and daughter, are in the city, guests of Mrs. John D. Henkle.

E. P. Vall, Esq., will address a Republican mass meeting at Farmer City to-night.

John Quinlan is home from his eastern trip. He bought a big stock of goods for Abel & Locke while east.

Danville News: Rev. Joseph Montgomery, a pioneer in the Conference, is in the city with a young wife, hale and hearty.

Rev. J. W. Cecil, of Macon, was one of the clerks at the annual meeting of the Springfield Presbytery in session at Jacksonville.

Hon. John Seboski, who was recently married, and has settled down at Salem, Ind., where he is practicing law, is in the city greeting his many friends here.

Manager Haines is so busy just now that he has one eye open constantly on the watch for an assistant. Eddie will soon be big enough to help the "old man."

Monticello Herald: L. E. Foster, of this city, has been offered a position as book-keeper in the Slinger office at Decatur, and will probably accept.

Rev. Lyman Clark, of Petersham, Mass., has arrived in the city, and will speak on temperance at the tabernacle to-morrow night. He is a brother of Mrs. J. G. Shea, and is said to be an excellent speaker.

R. L. Evans has something of a job on hand just now. He is putting up eight handsome awnings for Linn & Scruggs at their new location. "Dick" will do it in fine style.

Charles S. Cariens, of Mt. Zion, departed for Ann Arbor, Mich., last night, where he will remain for six months a student in the law department connected with the Michigan University.

E. D. Bartholomew, who has been visiting the large potteries in the eastern states since August 10th, buying a new stock of queensware and other goods, arrived home this morning.

Hon. Samuel G. Nesbitt, of Clear Lake, Sangamon county, is in the city, visiting his sister, Mrs. M. A. Dillehunt. Mr. Nesbitt, who resided here many years ago, is looking hale and hearty, and seems to be enjoying the evening of his well-spent life.

Worth Bradley is officiating as baggage master at the Union depot in place of Wm. Dodson, who is unable at present to fill the position, owing to the accident which befel him while at the Litchfield tournament on the 10th inst. While running in the fat man's race Mr. Dodson was taken with a cramp, and fell headlong to the ground, and since that unfortunate occurrence he has been taking a lay-off. He will be all right in a few days.

D. L. Bunn, who has been at Lincoln, attending the annual session of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., returned home last night. He says that on Tuesday night the Logan county democrats' crowd loudly and hoisted a flag, but on Wednesday they pulled down the Nation's emblem at the southern wing of the party shot at so indignantly during the "late unpleasantness," and when Mr. Bunn left Lincoln the democrats were exceedingly scarce—about as much so as they are here at the present writing.

BURGERS entered I. J. Chronister's grocery store, on the corner of Broadway and Durfee streets, last night, and carried off a lot of groceries and nearly all of a new stock of tobacco recently purchased.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Sept. 13, 1880.

E. A. GASTMAN, Clerk Board of Education—Dear Sir: Will you please tender to the Board of Education my resignation of the position I have held in the Decatur schools?

Allow me to express the regret I feel at severing my connection with the schools, also, my thanks for the unwavering kindness and courtesy I have met both from members of the board and superintendent. Any success I may have achieved, I feel to be largely due to the counsel and ready assistance I have always received at your hands.

Wherever I may be, the three years spent in the Decatur schools will be remembered among the pleasantest of my teaching experiences. Respectfully,

NETTIE WILEY
